Do you want to build a snowman? Song by Kristen Bell, Agatha Lee Monn and Katie Lopez from The FrozenPublishedWonderland Music CompanyRe25 November 2013s Recorded201211GenreShow tuneLength3:28LabelWalt DisneySongwriter (s) Kristen Anderson-LopezRobert LopezProducer (s) Kristen Anderson-Robert Lopez This is a song from the 2013 Disney animated feature film Frozen, with music and lyrics written by Kristen Anderson-Lopez and Robert Lopez. According to Nielsen SoundScan, according to Nielsen SoundScan, the total sales of the digital track is 1,600,000 downloads, which puts it in the second place in the list of the best-selling Christmas/holiday digital singles in the history of SoundScan (behind Mariah Carey's 1994 hit All I Want for Christmas Is You). Summary After Elsa accidentally harms Anna with her icy abilities, she locks herself in her bedroom. The song captures three different moments in which Anna tries and does not persuade Elsa to spend time with her - as children, teenagers and adults. In the film, the last of these moments comes after the sisters' parents died at sea in a storm. Production At some point Disney considered removing the song from the film because, as originally composed, it was too sad, and it was also too difficult in that it contained too much exposure. However, he was back after being well received by Disney staff. StitchKingdom explains, because of the walk of the film, this song is constantly cut and put back in the course of the film's development. In the end, the studio staff demanded that she stay. During the development of the film, Lopez at one point had to travel to Los Angeles to personally work with the producer to try to fix the song, and they had to sit down and work on how Elsa sounds compared to what Anna sounds like. Christoph Beck, who wrote the score of the film, added an interlude for the editing scenes. After the film was released, a fan put together a version of the song to show how the reprise could work in the climax of the film when Elsa realizes that Anna is completely frozen. Commenting on the clip of fans in January 2014, Anderson-Lopez noted that at one point she actually reprised the song for the climax of the film. Lopez added, If you watch it in the movie's stream, it would be jarring for them to break into the song at that point. versions around the world, to which 3 more versions, where added in the following years, bringing the number of official versions to 45. Several other language versions of the song were successful. The Japanese-language version, titled Yukidaruma Tsukur (雪だるまつくろう, Let's Make a Snowman), was performed by Sayak Kanda, who played 15-year-old and 18-year-old Anna, as well as Sumir Morohosi and Natsuki Inaba, who played Anna at the age of 9 and 5, respectively. It appeared on the Billboard Japan Hot 100 in April and May 2014, peaking at number 39, and was popular enough to be certified platinum for 250,000 RIAJ digital downloads in January 2015. In the Korean-language version, Yong Xi Yong, Lee Ji-min and Park Ji-yong sang. In March 2014, it peaked at number 115 on the Gaon Singles Chart, after being downloaded 17,000 times. The Italian version, along with the entire Italian adaptation of the film, was awarded the best foreign dubbing worldwide. Unknown critically acclaimed, the idea of having two princess sisters on opposite sides of the door within the same shot - both desperate to open it but unable - was something that appealed to songwriters. The song was widely recognized by film critics, music critics and audiences. The New York Post's Kyle Smith called it classic. USA Today called it a beautiful musical number that illustrates Anna's emotional longing, sung with Bella's sincere sweetness. Alonso Duraldé of The Wrap called it sharp. Moviefone describes the song as sobbing and the best song in Frozen. Forbes' Scott Mendelssohn talks about the wealth and subtle sadness in the basic relationship between Anna and Elsa, about so much time lost because of fear, self-confidence and some questionable parenting responsibilities at a key stage, and describes Do You Want To Build A Snowman as a beautiful song... it's just one of the few amazing songs. Mendelssohn added, I was absolutely terrified that I would come back as a climate refrath if the story ended badly. Sputnikmusic said that the songs complement the magnificent visuals, especially in the first extended cut of Do You Want to Build a Snowman and its tear-breaking climax and completion, and claims that it is one of the few vocal tracks far removed from the crushing ease of another material. The Rochester City newspaper described the song as creating characters and noted that along with Frozen Heart, it deeply resembles the release of a Disney song directed by Alan Menken... and it makes them feel instantly familiar. The soundtrack review adds: While The Snowman works better in the film (visuals fill in some song gaps) twee-cute vocals and gorgeous melody help its memorability. AllMusic said the song and love duo Love Is an Open Door have a modern Broadway dazzle.
